Richard Hoskins is an accomplished litigator, trial lawyer, and counselor in the fields of antitrust law and intellectual property law, as well as a law teacher.

He has written, lectured, counseled, litigated and tried complex jury and non-jury cases involving the Sherman Act, the Robinson-Patman Act, and the Clayton Act, as well as patent infringement cases under the patent statute. He counsels corporate clients on their pricing systems, distribution systems, marketing and sales policies and practices, trade associations, communications between competitors, joint ventures and mergers, and the interface between antitrust and intellectual property law.

At Northwestern University, and earlier at the University of Virginia, Mr. Hoskins has taught a variety of courses in antitrust law, civil procedure, and the economic regulation of business. He has published several articles and been a speaker at numerous seminars. At Northwestern, he has been honored as the recipient of the Robert Childres Memorial Award for Teaching Excellence; as the Outstanding First-Year Course Professor; and with the Dean's Teaching Award.

Mr. Hoskins is a Fellow of the American College of Trial Lawyers, and a Fellow of the American Bar Foundation and Illinois Bar Foundation. He is a member of the American, Illinois State, and Chicago Bar Associations, the Chicago Council of Lawyers, the Seventh Circuit Bar Association, and the Bar Association of the City of New York. He is a member of the Bars of Illinois and New York, as well as of the United States Supreme Court and various Federal Courts of Appeal and District Courts. He is a former member of the Board of Visitors and Governors of St. John's College (Annapolis and Santa Fe), an Honorary Canon of St. James Cathedral, and Chancellor Emeritus of the Episcopal Diocese of Chicago.
