

Biographies of Article Contributors

Analyzing the WNBA's Mandatory Age/Education Policy from a Legal, Cultural, and Ethical Perspective: Women, Men, and the Professional Sports Landscape

Professor Marc Edelman is an expert in the fields of sports law and economics. A graduate of both the Wharton School and Michigan Law School, Professor Edelman has practiced in the areas of sports, antitrust, and commercial litigation. He teaches courses in sports law at New York Law School, Seton Hall University, and Manhattanville College.

Dr. C. Keith Harrison is an Associate Professor at the University of Central Florida in the DeVos Sport Business Management Program in the College of Business Administration. Dr. Harrison has published numerous peer-reviewed articles and scholarly book chapters on his research and is CEO and co-founder of Scholar-Baller™, a non-profit organization that uses sports and entertainment to bridge the gap between academic achievement and popular culture.

A Penny for the Court's Thoughts? The High Price of Judicial Elections

Bronson D. Bills is presently a trial attorney in Salt Lake City, Utah. Prior to his current position he was a federal law clerk to the Honorable J. Thomas Greene, United States District Court for the District of Utah. Mr. Bills has published several other law journal articles in the Georgetown Journal of Law & Public Policy and the Connecticut Public Interest Law Journal.

Pregnancy, Medicaid, State Regulation, and the Production of Unruly Bodies

Khiara M. Bridges received her B.A. from Spelman College in 1999, her J.D. from Columbia Law School in 2002, and is currently a Ph. D. Candidate in the Department of Anthropology at Columbia University. Her dissertation, “Reproducing Race: An Ethnographic Study of Pregnancy as a Site of Racialization,” examines the intersection of biomedical, legal, and racial discourses during the event of pregnancy. Ms. Bridges is also a classically-trained ballet dancer, and she continues to dance professionally with several contemporary ballet companies.

“Rubbing Salt in the Wound”: As Nurses Battle with a Nationwide Staffing Shortage, an NLRB Decision Threatens to Limit the Ability of Nurses to Unionize

Amy Albro is a third-year student at Northwestern University School of Law. After graduation, she plans to relocate to New York City to start work at Ropes & Gray LLP in the firm’s corporate health care practice group.

A Fresh Look at a Stale Doctrine: How Public Policy and the Tenets of Piercing the Corporate Veil Dictate the Inapplicability of the Intracorporate Conspiracy Doctrine to the Civil Rights Arena

Barry Horwitz is a third-year student at Northwestern University School of Law. After graduating in May with a concentration in civil litigation and dispute resolution, he plans to work in the Intellectual Property Department of Greenberg Traurig's Chicago office. In his free time, he enjoys writing music and planning his upcoming wedding with his wonderful fiancée, Valerie.

Marketing Motherhood: Rights and Responsibilities of Egg Donors in Assisted Reproductive Technology Agreements

Sarah Terman is a third year student at Northwestern University School of Law. She also serves as Executive Articles Editor for the Northwestern Journal of Law and Social Policy.